INDIA MILE'S TIME AT ST GEORGE:

I was always encouraged by my history teachers to really expand my knowledge in fact when I asked for a specific lesson about Boudica my teacher organized it! The homework set also encouraged individual thought. We also completed research pieces on our Germany course - it gave me an opportunity to really explore women's role in Nazi Germany and undertake further research of my own - skills I am now relying on in my dissertation.

One of my favourite memories was undertaking a Roman Battle in Year 7. We all had made our own shields and we got to test them out with water balloons which was a lot of fun! I also was really encouraged to push myself beyond extra curriculars. I remember being encouraged by my teachers to organise an equality day where we managed to get in Nelson Mandela's bodyguard and teach students about LGBTQ rights for the first time. This is just one of many but it just reflected the kind of encouragement and support we got from our teachers. This event really began my passion for human rights which I am hoping to take into a possible future career.
